SKYLAB media group Announces New Modern Art Gallery

Laguna Beach, CA. – Locally owned creative agency SKYLAB media group announces their new modern art gallery featuring acclaimed painter, Andy Anh Ha. The gallery sits just below the offices of SKYLAB media group in Laguna’s South Coast Highway art district and will first open its doors for the First Thursday Art Walk on Nov. 6.

“I am looking forward to bringing something new to Laguna,” says Lydia McLaughlin, co-owner of SKYLAB modern art. “We just felt there was a true void in the modern art scene, even with all the galleries here.” Husband and wife team Lydia and Doug McLaughlin are the young, creative powers behind both facets of SKYLAB, and bring a contemporary approach to the work they produce through their graphics company. They could not be more excited to transcend that perspective into the gallery.

SKYLAB modern art debuts its first show with new work from LA-based artist, Andy Anh Ha. “His work is fresh and clean, yet classic and timeless,” says Lydia. His other fans include Hollywood’s hip stars such as Jessica Alba and Ben Savage. Both own work by Anh Ha. His paintings explore the theme of beauty through struggle, and use a wide variety of media from metals and texts, to polyacrylics and traditional oils. “It’s all about making something out of nothing,” says Anh Ha.

In addition to bringing emerging artistic talent to Laguna, the McLaughlins firmly believe in philanthropy through art. Twenty percent of each piece of art sold through the gallery will go to a charity. The buyer will be able to select from an available list upon purchase.
